POSTGRADUATE DIPLOMA IN PROGRAMME MANAGEMENT (PGDipPM)

PROSPECTUS
In the current economic climate, employers prefer job-relevant education and training for improving the abilities of employees and for providing them with the necessary skills to apply what they learn today in their work context tomorrow. All academic programmes and modules are presented in English and due to the structure of all Cranfield's academic programmes, students need to spend only one day per month away from work for classes. Classes can be attended live, or live on-line via the internet. The rest of the time, student syndicate groups meet outside of work hours to discuss their practical case studies. Cranfield's state of the art teaching and learning technologies allow classes, and even syndicate group meetings, to be attended live online via the internet anywhere in South Africa and the world.

The learning programme requires the execution of learning content (modules) in a specific order that is in line with the accepted national and international bodies of knowledge of this applied science. The different learning modules therefore are offered in a prescribed order.
